Business Consulting Network International at 2010 International District Export Council Conference

North America's Premier International 2010 Trade Conference Capitalizing on America's Export Advantages: Green & Innovation

San Francisco, October 28, 2010. The annual International DEC Conference has been hosted in Detroit and in Windsor, Ontario, Canada, from October 24 to 27. This year's Conference has featured world-renowned business leaders, high-level government officials, and speakers from leading think tanks and academic institutions. This has been North America's largest conference in 2010 devoted to exporting and attracted about 500 attendees. The conference featured many unique aspects including a private briefing by the Canada Border Services Agency and a networking dinner with Canadian businesses in Canada.

The experts of Business Consulting Network International participated as exhibitor and had numerous promising conversations with decision makers. "The DEC Conference 2010 was a perfect platform to make business contacts, and the Canada Day was also of great value for BCNI."

President Obama's National Export Initiative (NEI) challenge to double U.S. exports in the next five years has presented Europe with the advantage of importing U.S. products, services and technologies into the EU.
